

Photo by Douglas Stutz

Join the Conversation about the Experience of War

Are you a civilian interested in learning more about the experience of veterans in conflict and at home? Or are you a U.S. military veteran, refugee, or immigrant who has experience in conflict?

Please join us for Still Coming Home: Conversations about the Experience of War. In collaboration with the Denver Veterans Writers Workshop, Colorado Humanities collected creative writing by Denver-area writers in the recently published anthology Still Coming Home: Denver Veterans Writing, which will be provided as a shared text to foster conversation. Talk with the authors, editors, and other community members about their experience of war and challenges since returning to civilian life in this three-part, facilitated conversation series.

November 17, December 1, & December 8

2:30 - 4:00 p.m.

The Blair-Caldwell African American
Research Library

2401 Welton Street, Denver, CO 80205

November 7, 14, & 28

6:00 – 7:30 p.m.

Old Town Library

201 Peterson Street, Fort Collins 80524

For more information, contact

Bess Maher

Colorado Humanities Veterans Writing Program Coordinator

bess@coloradohumanities.org

303.894.7951 x19
